“ Joshua was part of a very special program through Auburn University. Training dogs for bomb detection. It was the first time they tried the program this was Graceville Florida Joshua applied for program and was accepted. The first dog they put him with was Falston 30,000.00 dog but now in retirement, Falston had to train Joshua before he would be ready for his own and that transition went very well. Joshua was now ready for his first pup it was probably a year working with Cloie and every few weeks Auburn University would take the pops back to track progress within the year and several trips back to the University it now was time for graduation of each trainer had to give a speach regarding experience by the time Joshua finished his speach the Warden was in tears, so he took the training very serious it was very difficult for to release her back to Auburn University not long after that Cloie got a job with The Navy Seals, Auburn University presented Joshua with Award and they stated Cloie was at top of her class. Very proud of Joshua always perfection see pictures below
