With all the sports he participated in it was Bodybuilding that ended up being the sport that would later give him his claim to fame. At the early age of 12 Phil began weightlifting when his father bought him a set of weights and from that moment on body building and Health and Fitness became a way of life for him. Through great passion and true dedication to the sport as well as many years of hard work he went on to win his IFBB pro card after placing first in the Mr.USA contest in 1995 in Denver Colorado. Phil competed for a few years in professional bodybuilding but then left that behind to focus on staying healthy and fit. This is where he found his passion in helping others achieve their fitness goals. Over the years Phil has trained a countless number of people, both online and in the gym, and has truly put his heart into helping people. He has also gained quite a following with the youtube videos he has made over the past decade. There were many things Phil enjoyed doing in life. In addition to participating in sports and working out in the gym he also loved to watch Football. His favorite team was the Cleveland Browns and he used to love to watch the NFL drafts each year in anticipation of Football season. Phil was very much interested in health and fitness and cooking and loved going to the grocery store and going out to dinner. He also enjoyed, watching reality TV as well as documentaries and movies, playing word games online, and spending time with his family and friends who meant the world to him. In more recent years he loved taking his youngest daughter to the gym and the park and also was blessed to be able to coach her soccer team when she was younger as well.

In addition to the already mentioned places where Phil lived throughout his life, he also moved around after college and lived in other places including Seattle, Washington Phoenix, Arizona, and then onto Geneva NY where he met the love of his life Pamela (Guererri) Herson. His quest for health led him to help others achieve their fitness goals and it was in Geneva where he decided to open his first gym called Ultimate Physique. Then shortly thereafter, in partnership with his wife Pamela, he transitioned and opened a larger gym called Finger Lakes Fitness also in Geneva, NY. In addition to the gym they also owned and managed rental properties in upstate NY as well as having their own online supplement website. Shortly after closing the gym they decided to move in 2017 to the Jacksonville, Florida area looking for a warmer climate while maintaining their rental properties in NY . More than anything Phil was a loving husband, father, son & brother who had a big heart and desire to help others.
