“ When Nancy Synder called to let me know that Terry had passed away, I had to step back and gather myself. Terry and his family moved to Hasson Heights In Oil City during elementary school. His family joined the Hasson Heights Presbyterian Church. The kids that lived in Hasson Heights were a tight knit group in those early years. I too remember Terry's parents being our youth group leaders and spending time at the Thompson home. Our community church group that Terry and his family were such an integret part of made our growing up years so precious and memorable which instilled so many valuable characteristics in all of us. A tie that binds even after many years apart. Many memories came back such as Terry loved reading James Bond and discussing the plots and anxiously awaiting the next book. He also like Alfred E. Nueman. He made me laugh and smile during those times which was a great gift. Because of our last names first initial, we spent years in the same home room. Just those thoughts of him put a smile upon my face. My Mom worked his Dad at Lyons Transportation so over those years of us not living near, she kept me informed about Terry and his family. He was a good guy and a great man and always a friend. I am sorry for you loss and blessed to have been a friend.

“ Terry was my friend and neighbor. I first met Terry in Kindergarden and we attended Oil City Schools until we graduated 50 years ago. We attended the same church and experienced many youthful adventures such as volley ball and sled riding. My mother who is 89 enjoyed teaching English to Terry all during high school. She was delighted that he pursued English at University of Pittsburgh. Oil City class of 1970 will miss Terry and his quick wit. Farewell my friend.

“ Terry was my friend and classmate from elementary school through high school. His parents, Bob and Norma, were my high school Sunday School teachers at HHUP Church. We spent many summer evenings playing volleyball at the Thompson house. I was so happy to see Terry at an OCHS class reunion and hear about his family and life in Florida. Terry was an amazing man!
